APPENDIX

RISKS

1. All risks described in this Appendix as applying to the ICO will apply also to the Pre-Sale.

2. The participation and purchase of the AIC tokens carries significant risk. If any of the risks outlined below materialize it could have a severe negative impact on the ICO Process or the Company (including but not limited to the impossibility of continuing a business or the bankruptcy of the Company) and the Purchasers may lose all the funds invested into the ICO Process.

3. Prior to purchasing the AIC tokens the Purchaser should carefully consider the risks outlined below, the information stated in these Terms, the Whitepaper or in any other relevant document and, to the extent necessary, consult a lawyer, accountant, and/or tax professionals in the country or the jurisdiction the Company located at or fell in and in the jurisdiction the Purchaser is a resident.

4. There is a risk in regard to the changes to the legislation and taxes as well as to the interpretation of the legislation and the taxable status of the ICO Process and the tokens by the respective regulators and authorities.

5. Cryptocurrencies and financing through cryptographic tokens are being, or may be, subject to regulatory control by various regulatory bodies within different jurisdictions. The approach by the regulators towards the cryptocurrencies, cryptographic tokens and Initial Coin Offering may change rapidly. The Company could be impacted by the regulatory enquiries or actions in different jurisdictions from time to time which could impede or limit the ability to carry out the ICO Process, allow respective Purchasers from different jurisdictions to participate in the ICO Process or continue the development of the AIC. This uncertainty significantly rises the risks connected with participating in the ICO Process or with acquiring and using of the AIC tokens.

6. The AIC tokens are intended to be placed for trading on a secondary market for cryptographic tokens after the ICO Process, however, the Company cannot guarantee this. The circulation and trading with the AIC tokens after the ICO Process on the secondary market depends whether the AIC tokens are admitted to trading by the respective secondary market exchange provider. There is a risk that the AIC tokens will not become available for trading on the secondary market.

7. There is a risk of lack of stability and functioning of the secondary market exchanges for the cryptocurrencies as these exchanges are new and unregulated. This makes the secondary market exchanges more vulnerable to the cases of fraud, business or technical failure or new regulations limiting their functioning. There is also a risk that an active trading market for the AIC tokens shall not develop or sustain.
8. There is a risk that the price of the AIC tokens could experience extreme volatility from time to time as the cryptographic tokens are and have been subject to extreme fluctuations in price. The volatility of the AIC tokens could differ between different jurisdictions as a result of approach towards the cryptographic tokens and the Initial Coin Offerings by the respective regulators within these jurisdictions.

9. The Website, the Whitepaper, these Terms and any other document related to the ICO Process may include forward-looking statements, including expected technical or economic results. There is a risk that these forward-looking statements differ significantly as there is a possibility that the predictions in the forward-looking statements shall not occur. Thus, the Purchaser shall not base his/her expectations with AIC tokens for future success or failure or on the forward-looking statements.

10. The AIC token software is developed on the Ethereum blockchain. Being an open source project, Ethereum software could be updated or amended from time to time by anyone and it is not possible to foresee the impact of such update or amendment on the Ethereum or AIC tokens developed on its software. However, any update or amendment to Ethereum could lead to unexpected outcome that could have significant effect on the AIC tokens.

11. There is a risk that the AIC tokens, Wallets or any other website are open to attacks by the hackers which could result for the Purchaser or the Company in losing any of the cryptographic currencies or other tokens (including but not limited to the AIC tokens) or have severe impact on the ICO Process.

12. There is a risk that anyone may introduce weaknesses or bugs into the core infrastructural elements of the AIC tokens causing the system to lose AIC tokens for one, several or all the Purchasers.

13. There is a risk of stealing the AIC tokens or the cryptographic currencies which shall be transferred in between the Company and the Purchaser.

14. There is a risk that the AIC may not be developed in the manner and to the extent as described in the Whitepaper regardless of the amount of funds raised within the ICO Process, that the AIC will be launched as developed by the Developing company, that a blockchain utilizing or adopting AIC will be launched or a blockchain will ever be launched with or without changes to the AIC and with or without a distribution matching the fixed, non-transferable AIC tokens balances.

15. Cryptographic tokens such as AIC tokens are a new and untested technology. In addition to the risks included in this APPENDIX, there are other risks associated with the purchase of the AIC tokens, holding and use of AIC tokens, including those that Company cannot anticipate.
